

Sharing and Turn-Taking

I like to play with my friends at school. When I play with my friends, I can share and take turns.

There are many toys I like to play with. Sometimes my friends like to play with the same toys as I do.

Sharing and Turn-Taking

I can be a good friend by sharing my toys. Sharing means giving a toy to a friend so that they can play with it. I can say, "Here you go," and hand them the toy.

Sharing also means playing with toys at the same time as another friend. We can play together! I can ask, "Can I play with you?"

Sharing and Turn-Taking

I can also be a good friend by taking turns. Taking turns means that I play with the toy for a while, and then I give the toy to my friend, so they can have a turn. I can say, "My turn" when it's my turn, and I can say, "Your turn" when it's my friend's turn.

If I want to play with a toy that my friend is playing with, I can ask for a turn. I can hold my hand out or ask, "Can I have a turn?"

Sharing and Turn-Taking

Sometimes my friend is not ready to give me a turn. That is okay. Instead, I can play with a different toy, or I can wait until they are finished.

When I share and take turns during play time, I am being a good friend. This makes my friends happy!
